Organisations and companies can apply for corporate membership in ENBIS. The rights and benefits of corporate members are listed below.

ENBIS Corporate Membership Rights and Benefits

- Corporate members have the same rights as individual members.
- Each Corporate Member should nominate a representative who should communicate and act on their behalf.
- A Special Interest Group (SIG) exists for Corporate Members. The title of this SIG is the Corporate Section.
- Every corporate member automatically becomes a member of the Corporate Section of ENBIS.
- The Corporate Section elects its own representative to the Council of ENBIS.
- The Corporate Section may nominate an individual from the corporate members for election to any office of the Council of ENBIS.
- The Corporate Section may elect a representative to each national chapter of ENBIS.
- The Corporate Section may propose to Council any future contributions that the corporate members could offer to ENBIS.
- The Corporate Section has its own page on the ENBIS website (yet to be developed).
- The Corporate Section web page has links to the home pages of every corporate member and their respective representatives.
- It is expected, although not obligatory, that each corporate member shall have a link from their own website to the ENBIS website.
- The Corporate Section may arrange ENBIS-relevant events, and call upon ENBIS to facilitate them.
• The initial corporate membership subscription has been set at €500, but the Corporate Section may reset this fee, scaled to organization size and/or other relevant factors, with the agreement of the Council of ENBIS.

• The ENBIS Council shall appoint a vice president to represent the Council at meetings of the Corporate Section.

Corporate members are also entitled to the following benefits:

• The right to propose speakers and lectures to ENBIS Academy.

• A channel for publicity: link from the ENBIS website to the corporate member’s website and a 10% reduction on fees for sponsoring packages at ENBIS events.

• A channel for recruitment: one free job advert and a reduction of 50% on all further job adverts published through relevant ENBIS channels.

• The inclusion of the ENBIS logo on their letterheads and on other corporate PR materials as approved by the Permanent Office and Executive Committee of ENBIS.
